10 ORGANIZATIONS OFFERING PRO BONO NONPROFIT SUPPORT

08/21/25 | DIGITAL DESIGN

For many nonprofits, the need for outside help is clear – but the budget to pay for it isn't. That's where pro bono nonprofit support can be such an asset.

In this post, we give you a list of ten organizations worth checking out. Each entry on our list offers pro bono nonprofit support in some capacity.

If you are a nonprofit looking to make a difference, but you don't have the budget for outside help, this post is for you.

10 Organizations That Offer Pro Bono Nonprofit Support

1) Taproot

Taproot is one of the most established players in the pro bono space. They have a strong track record of connecting nonprofits to experts across industries.

The best part? Their system is flexible and virtual-first, which makes it easy for organizations anywhere in the U.S. to find help.

- What they offer: Marketing services, IT skills, and more.
- Best for: Nonprofits that need volunteers for short-term (and more specific) projects.
- How to access: Create a profile on their website so you can be matched with professionals to partner with.

2) Catchafire

Catchafire specializes in volunteer projects with clear timelines. Have a project in mind, but don't have the budget to make it a reality? Catchafore is worth checking out.

The organization also provides onboarding and continual support as you work together. This helps ensure that the relationship runs smoothly.

- What they offer: Volunteer projects across a wide range of skills.
- Best for: Nonprofits that need help running fundraisers, setting up different tech, or designing webpages.
- How to access: You can apply on their website, although some nonprofits get access via a local funder or foundation partner.

3) Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts (VLA)

Are you a creative nonprofit that needs outside help? If so, VLA can provide invaluable pro bono nonprofit support.

As an organization specializing in legal assistance, VLA provides a variety of services that nonprofits can benefit from. This includes contract reviews, nonprofit incorporation, intellectual property protection, and board governance.

- What they offer: Pro bono legal assistance for nonprofits in the arts and culture space.
- Best for: Creative organizations navigating contracts, IP, or governance questions.
- How to access: Visit your local or regional VLA chapter and review their application process.

4) Lawyers Alliance for New York

Located in New York City, and looking for legal help? Lawyers Alliance might just be your go-to resource. Similar to VLA, Lawyers Alliance offers a wide range of legal services that can normally be out of reach for nonprofits. They also produce useful publications and legal alerts for the broader nonprofit field.

5) TechSoup

While not exclusively pro bono, TechSoup is still worth checking out for nonprofits. That's because it specializes in tech discounts and access to pro bono services through partners like Microsoft and Google.

The result? Essential services and tools for a fraction of the price.

- What they offer: Discounted and donated technology, plus occasional pro bono tech consulting.
- Best for: Nonprofits looking to upgrade systems, software, or digital infrastructure.
- How to access: Register at their website for access to services and product donations.

6) Goodie Nation

While Goodie Nation is known for putting organizations in touch with volunteers, it's much more than that. By specializing in connecting, they are able to provide nonprofits access to a deep network of tech and business professionals. These aren't just volunteers, but people that can make a real impact on the organizations they work with.

- What they offer: Mentorship and connections to skilled professionals for social impact organizations.
- Best for: Nonprofits and founders working in tech, innovation, or equity-focused spaces.
- How to access: Apply for support on their website.

7) CreateAthon

Want results, and need them fast? CreateAthon is worth checking out. Here's the organization in a nutshell: they gather local marketing professionals to complete major creative projects for nonprofits in just 24 hours.

Clearly, the results can be powerful. Treat this as pro bono nonprofit support, but faster than anybody you'd ever pay.

- What they offer: 24-hour pro bono marketing marathons for nonprofits.
- Best for: Organizations in urgent need of brand, campaign, or communications materials.
- How to access: Watch for local CreateAthon events. You can also reach out on their website to see if there's a host near you.

8) Pro Bono Partnership

Pro Bono Partnership is a great legal resource for organizations in the tri-state area (Connecticut, New Jersey and New York). It offers a wide range of services and a strong network of volunteer attorneys.

- What they offer: Free legal services to nonprofits in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.
- Best for: Regionally based nonprofits needing help with employment law and contracts, but which don't have the budget for it.
- How to access: Visit probonopartner.org to see if you're eligible.

9) MIT Solve Volunteers

While more specialized, MIT Solve is great for nonprofits that work in innovation, health, climate, and education spaces. Are you an organization with ambitious growth plans? MIT Solve is worth checking out.

- What they offer: Volunteers with technical, business, and innovation expertise.
- Best for: Organizations working on social tech solutions or global challenges.
- How to access: Visit their website. There you can explore their volunteer and "Solver" community opportunities.

10) Freelancers Union

We finish this list with one of the simplest (but effective) options for pro bono nonprofit support. The fact is, many freelancers are eager to lend their skills to causes that align with their values – they just don't know where to find them.

That's where the Freelancers Union comes in. It provides a pathway for those connections between freelancers that want to help, and nonprofits that need it – but at no cost.

- What they offer: Access to creative freelancers who often volunteer time for causes they care about.
- Best for: Nonprofits with design, writing, or media needs.
- How to access: Go to their website, join their program, and you will be able to tap into local SPARK events and job boards.
